Lourdes Dominguez Lino defeats Eugenie Bouchard (ret.)
6-4, 1-6, 1-0
Second Round

An Interview With:

Eugenie Bouchard

Q. Genie, from what I could tell, it looked like you sort of wanted to keep going or were up going after the second set and Nick was suggesting you stop. Is that how things more or less went?

EUGENIE BOUCHARD: Well, I'm always wanting to try and keep wanting to play. It's so hard for me to stop playing a match, unless I am dying. So yeah, he strongly suggested that I stop. I wanted to give it another game in the third set, and when I realized I couldn't serve faster than I could serve lefty, then I thought I should probably stop playing. So it sucks.

Q. Is this the same injury as what had you last summer, feel like?

EUGENIE BOUCHARD: Correct. It's the same one, which is why I'm concerned and why I did retire, to not get in the same situation as I was last year where I pushed way too much with an injury and made it worse.

Q. Genie, since this injury has recurred, are you planning on using the same treatments you used before? Are you going to explore maybe some additional kinds of preventative treatment?

EUGENIE BOUCHARD: Yeah, I mean good question. I want to do anything I can to make sure this doesn't happen again.

It's -- you know, with serving in tennis, it's something that for me it has been kind of a worrying issue, but yeah, I mean I want to do anything I can to avoid having this again in the future.

Q. Is it the kind of thing where it was kind of there when you got on the court and then you tweaked it or did you feel like on one swing or one serve, uh-oh, there it went again?

EUGENIE BOUCHARD: I actually hurt it in my first round yesterday on a specific serve. I remember feeling it. But it wasn't too bad during the match yesterday. And then after I cooled down and everything from my match yesterday, last night, you know, I really realized I did something to it. So you know, I tested it out in practice this morning, and it was there, so I had to tape it before the match hoping I could kind of get by with that, but it wasn't enough. It got worse in the match today.
